

ASK THE AUTHORS

SATURDAY 1ST OCTOBER 17:00-19:00

JOIN IN THE CELEBRATIONS!

Few things match the excitement of seeing your book in print, as six local authors have discovered during the last year.

Tonight, as part of the celebrations for the launch of two brand new novels, published by Summertime Publishing, you are invited to raise a glass and enjoy an evening of readings, questions and the chance to see the Espresso Book Machine in action... printing one of your books while you wait!

Sunshine Soup by Jo Parfitt, published by Summertime Publishing

Jo's 28th book but her first novel gives the author much to share about crossing genres.

The Thinking Tank by Jae de Wylde, published by Summertime Publishing

An experienced journalist will share what it was like to finally write her first book.

Amsterdam... The Essence by David Beckett, published by DJB Pubs

Learn how David quit his day job, had a great idea and published an art book based on the place he calls home

The Singing Warrior by Niamh Ni Bhroin, published by Summertime Publishing

A new author, heals herself by writing her memoir and then creating accompanying music CD and audio book before turning her book into a business.

Black and (a)Broad by Carolyn Vines, published by Adelaar Books

Writing about her own experience, Carolyn's approach to writing and publishing will reveal a writer with a strategy and an eye on her brand.

In Search of Salt by Paulina Vanderbilt, published by Koo Press

Local Dutch poet writes poetry in English and by October A Poetic Pilgrimage will be out too.

Treehut, American Book Center, Lange Poten, Den Haag, www.abc.nl
